Summary

The Aatmanirbhar Bharat Programme, launched by the Government of India in May 2020, aims to foster economic self-reliance, reduce dependency on imports, and empower local industries to thrive based on their own strengths. In line with its vision of strengthening the nation's economic foundation, the initiative also emphasizes promoting entrepreneurship, encouraging innovation, and creating a business ecosystem conducive to growth. The program's core objective is not only to enhance India's competitiveness on the global stage but also to empower domestic businesses and entrepreneurs, especially in the sectors of manufacturing, technology, and services. A key pillar of the Aatmanirbhar Bharat initiative is the empowerment of entrepreneurs. The program places significant emphasis on developing an environment that supports Micro, Small, and Medium Enterprises (MSMEs), startups, and new-age ventures. By creating more opportunities for innovation and facilitating easy access to capital, the initiative aims to boost the growth of businesses in various sectors, particularly in technology, defense, and manufacturing. This focus on entrepreneurship is critical for achieving sustainable growth, generating employment, and ensuring long-term prosperity in the country. This program is often accompanied by public rallies and awareness campaigns to engage and motivate citizens, entrepreneurs, and industries in contributing to India's growth.

Outcome of the Programme

1. India increased its indigenous defense manufacturing capacity and exports.
2. Rise in employment opportunities in construction, electronics, textiles, logistics, and agro-processing.
3. Increase in agri-tech startups and digital platforms connecting farmers to markets.
