Objectives :

- To provide deeper understanding on research and enhance the research skill of the faculty members
- To improve the research paper writing ability and research publication of faculty members

Summary Report

The first session was a common session to all participants and commenced with an introduction to research by the resource person Dr. J. Lesitha Jeeva Kumari. During the session she explained the various types of journals, types of research publications, the evaluation and publication process of a research article. She further narrated the significance of observing journal metrics and explained the concept of H-index, i10 index and impact factor of a journal. She also informed the audience on the impact of citations on journal and author metrics. Further she elaborated on journal citation, indexing platforms. During the post break session the resource person further gave a broader view on the ethical practices in research. And encouraged all the participants to embrace ethical practices. The session ended with a brief Q&A session where the resource person clarified all the questions/doubts raised by the audience. The successive sessions (2-5) were taken over by discipline specific resource persons to meet the practical and technical aspects of research in specific domains.

Day 2-5 School of Life Sciences and Physical Science

During the second session the resource person Dr. J. Lesitha Jeeva Kumari explained the participants on the components and order of writing a research article detailing on the contents of research article. Further, the resource person gave a demonstration on accessing literature databases like PubMed. After a brief break the participants were assigned an exercise of identifying the area of research and formulating the review structure. During the third session, the participants were explained the various reference styling and demonstrated on writing a short review. During the fourth session the participants were guided to write a one page review on their area of research. During the fifth and last session, the resource person Dr. R. Jesu Jaya Sudan gave a brief note on writing book chapters and books and highlighted the importance of international publications.

Day 2-5 School of Creative Arts and Languages

During the second session Dr. P. Jemima Jeba Selvi led a session focused on the qualities of a research scholar and insisted on maintaining research integrity. During the third session the resource person Dr. A. Kumanan covered procedures and protocols to be followed during a field study. He also explained the methods of documenting the results. In session four of the workshop the resource person Dr. N. Hemamalini explained the participants the various types of Publications, procedure in selecting journals, steps in manuscript preparation, with special attention to avoiding predatory journals and improving research visibility. The programme concluded on Session 5 with an interactive workshop by Dr. C. Deepa on "Think, Type and Transform – Academic Writing." where she elaborated on addressing research gaps through critical thinking.

Day 2-5 School of Computing Sciences

In Session 2 of the workshop, the resource person Dr. K. Priya guided the participants on writing a well-structured, original, and professional research articles by demonstrating the various steps involved. During the third session Dr. M. Inbavalli provided clear and thoughtful insights into research design, methodology, data collection, and ethical research practices embedded in research. The fourth session of the workshop began with the introduction of AI tools by Dr. K. Priya where she explained its importance and support in literature review, data analysis, plagiarism checking, and publication enhancement. In the fifth session Dr. T. Balasubramanian highlighted the recent advances and research trends in computer science and encouraged the exploration of emerging fields in computing sciences.

Day 2-5 School of Business and Commerce

The second session of the workshop was addressed by Dr. Merlin Mythili Nelson during which she guided the participants in identifying research problems and writing an effective review of literature. She explained the various sources of literature collections and organization of a meaningful research report. The third session of the workshop was handled by Dr. Thoufeeq (Presidency University, Bangalore) online mode. During the session the resource person introduced the participants on the bibliometric analysis of research publications and its importance to analyse research trends and its impact. The fourth session guided by Dr. C. Nithya was focussed on the various methods involved in data collection tools. She elaborated the participants on the techniques that support accurate and appropriate data gathering. The final session of the program handled by Dr. D. Vetrivelan, provided insights on research modeling and AI tools that support efficient data analysis and research enhancement. He insisted on the usage of such tools to improvise research practices and reporting.

Each session concluded with a Q&A session where the resource persons attended to and clarified all the queries and doubts raised by the participants. Personal guidance was provided by the resource persons during all hands-on-session.

Participants Count :

Internal Participants	: Faculty: 97	Students: Nil
External Participants	: Faculty: Nil	Students: Nil

Outcome of the Program

- The participants gained knowledge on the components of research articles
- The participants acquired an understanding on how to perform, analyse and document research reports/manuscript
- The participants understood the various parameters in selecting the research area specific journal and the ethics in publication

Feedback report

All the participants of the workshop reported that the session was very useful and had greatly enhanced their understanding of research writing. The participants gained insights into the publication process, selecting the right journal for publication. The workshop had been an eyeopener for many participants for writing research and review articles. They participants have also stated that the workshop had immensely supported them to understand the importance of quality in research. The workshop had indeed changed their perception of research from being complicated into an interesting path to the pursuit of knowledge. The program had also motivated the participants to conduct meaningful research and publish their findings for the benefit of the society and improve their research standards. Overall the participants were very satisfied with the workshop and are looking forward to much more of such inspiring programs.
